"He told me I was pregnant and I didn't even have the strength to ask for a pregnancy test," said Janis Kuhnt. CBS News correspondent Lesley Stahl reports that after a 3-year-old son, Kuhnt had an 80-degree fever. Get Breaking News Delivered to Your Inbox "They looked at my lymph nodes. They said I had lymphoma. It had spread to my spleen and lungs," she said. Kuhnt was diagnosed with the aggressive form of cancer and given a regimen of chemotherapy. "The medication he gave me was just so horrible," said Kuhnt. "I felt like I was going through an hourglass. And at the end of every treatment, I had more tumors. I just
