When you purchase Photoshop, you will receive a download link that you can use to download the software. When you have the download link, you will need to open it and follow the instructions. Once the installation is complete, you will be prompted to choose a language for the software. After choosing the language, you will then be presented with a license agreement. If you have not been prompted to sign the license agreement, then you can skip this step. Double-click on the license agreement to expand it. Then, select the option to accept or decline it. After you have accepted the license agreement, you will have to provide your name and address. This information is used by Adobe to send you the software license key. Additionally, you need to provide a valid email address so that you can receive any future updates and messages from Adobe. After providing all of the required information, you will be prompted to restart your computer for the installation to complete.

With Windows users making up the vast majority of the world's Photoshop users - and Macintosh users being a minority - the latest release features bundles of enhancements for each. Adobe's update website spruiks Adobe has made a number of updates, but perhaps the most interesting change is the addition of an Apple Watch app. It automatically syncs a scene from an iPhone or iPad and projects that image directly to the Watch. With this, you can edit a site or scene on an iPad and still preview it on your Watch app. See the preview below. Saving money on your next photo editing job, the latest version of Photoshop looks like a very attractive alternative to Windows-based software like Adobe Lightroom and Apple's Aperture. Windows Central recently crunched the numbers for both the cloud-based and desktop-based programs, and Photoshop Graphics vs. Lightroom Graphics definitely favors the former. Actually since updates to Adobe Lightroom to version 5.5.5, after you open a lightroom file and go to preview and then click the right mouse button on the file and then select open in Photoshop CC 2018. it opens in the spot were you have it in the tabs and file system. Have been using a ps2018 file browser from Visme and I like it much better than Photoshop. But have not found a way to delete or add new photos to a set in PS. But I guess I am not understanding PS the way I should. Just figured someone may have a solution to this?

Photoshop's Magic-Wand tool has a brand-new feature called "Magic-Wand Extension". Now with this new feature you can drag an object onto the dark area of an image to hide it. Previously it was quite difficult to hide objects in dark areas of an image. Photoshop now supports multi-monitor view at 100% editing size. Click right-click and select 'View Image As' from the context menu to change the layout of your working area so that you can see four monitors side by side. As a result, the Photoshop interface looks uniform and feels streamlined. Adobe Photoshop now has a navigation bar built right into the toolbox itself. It combines the commands found in the toolbox itself with the features found in the menus to simplify the process of finding all of the tools you need. Adobe Photoshop now uses AI recognition to attempt to identify the type of content in a photo (for example, textures, people, objects, and so on). If the software detects a content-based type, it is more likely to support various editing options that are dedicated to that particular type of content for optimal results. For example, if the application suggests Box Blur for chairs, you can apply the effect or not. No matter how deep AI is, it can't be perfect. The software will still work just as well with any kind of content; there is no need to avoid certain content types. Photoshop elements now supports Photoshop image name, so now you can edit all your PSD files and PSD Extensions at the same time. It is written in Mac Energy Belle language and is compatible with Photoshop and Photoshop Elements OS.
